

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention has an object which can facilitate selection of a program to view by allowing a viewer to recognize recorded program contents in a short period of time, and can collect or recover personal information of viewers who view a program. Input the specified conditions of the program desired to view by the information utilization apparatus (3), store the summary playback information representing the summary content of the broadcasting contents information and additional screen information, extract a specific summary playback information and additional screen information according to the specified condition information sent from the information utilization apparatus (3), distributes to the information utilization apparatus (3) by the information supply apparatus (2), and create the summary based on the distributed information and replays the same by the information utilization apparatus (3). When the summary is played back, the information utilization apparatus (3) transmits the viewing results information showing that the summary has been played back to the information supply apparatus (2) and the information supply apparatus (2) collects this viewing results information, and creates the statistics of the viewing results information.